WHY SHOULD YOUR CHILD PLAY A MUSICAL INSTRUMENT?

"Students with coursework/experience in music performance and music appreciation scored higher on the SAT."

"The musician is constantly adjusting decisions on tempo, tone, style, rhythm, phrasing, and feeling--training the brain to become incredibly good at organizing and conducting numerous activities at once. Dedicated practice of this orchestration can have a great payoff for lifelong attentional skills, intelligence, and an ability for self-knowledge and expression."

"Studying music encourages self-discipline and diligence, traits that carry over into intellectual pursuits and that lead to effective study and work habits. An association of music and math has, in fact, long been noted. Creating and performing music promotes self-expression and provides self-gratification while giving pleasures to others."

"A research team exploring the link between music and intelligence reported that music training is far superior to computer instruction in dramatically enhancing children's abstract reasoning skills, the skills necessary for learning math and science."

"Secondary students who participated in band or orchestra reported the lowest lifetime and current use of all substances (alcohol, tobacco, illicit drugs)."

"The U.S. Department of Education lists the arts as subjects that college-bound middle and junior high school students should take, stating 'Many colleges view participation in the arts and music as a valuable experience that broadens students' understanding and appreciation of the world around them.'"
